

How to Engage Families and the Community in SUMMER READING

Get the Word Out
in Your Community

Share Your Message

Scholastic
Summer Reading

Learn from
Your Peers

Tips for Families

A Letter from Michael Haggren, Chief Academic Officer, Scholastic Education

After a challenging and unconventional school year, Scholastic recognizes that the next several months and beyond will be a critical time for accelerating learning and addressing trauma. Access to books and social-emotional learning supports can provide important opportunities for continuous learning this summer.

Findings from the Scholastic Teacher & Principal School Report reveal that 96% of educators agree that providing year-round access to books at home is important to enhancing student achievement. Educators also told us that the benefits of reading fiction and nonfiction books are wide ranging; they pointed to building reading comprehension, academic vocabulary, and reading fluency as the top academic benefits. In terms of the top social-emotional benefits, educators shared that reading helps students understand people who are different from them, helps develop empathy, and helps students see themselves in characters and stories.

Prior to the pandemic, we saw firsthand through our dedicated K–6 district partners the positive effects of providing increased access to books and family engagement opportunities during the summer:

- 78% of students in Grades 3–5 maintained or increased their reading levels from spring to fall. (Greenville, SC 2017)
- 100% of families agreed that reading books over the summer would help their children during the school year. (Greenville, SC, and Stoughton, MA 2018)
- 86% of students in Grade 3 reported having the courage to read books that might be hard to read after participating in LitCamp. (Schenectady, NY 2019)

Now more than ever, we must help all children discover the joy and connectedness that reading can offer, both to help them find comfort and to continue to build skills before they head back to school in the fall.

For 100 years it has been Scholastic’s mission to help all students succeed while supporting educators and families in their important work to nurture a love of reading and learning. We welcome the opportunity to partner with you to create a unique summer learning plan that provides continuous instruction and engagement for your students, teachers, and families.

In this Summer Reading Guide, you will find tips and best practices for hosting events, gaining visibility by reaching out to local media, and connecting with the community. To learn more about how Scholastic can support your summer learning goals, email SCHLEducation@scholastic.com or call 1-800-387-1437.

Get the Word Out IN YOUR COMMUNITY

MAKE AN ANNOUNCEMENT IN THE MEDIA

If you're looking for ways to increase community involvement and awareness for your summer reading initiative, consider letting local news outlets know about your efforts. This could lead to a potential positive news story highlighting the great work that your school or district is doing to support students!

Consider the following newsworthy angles to include in your media announcement:

- Students receiving free take-home books
- Students participating in LitCamp
- A local celebrity conducting a virtual read-aloud
- Families receiving resources to encourage reading at home

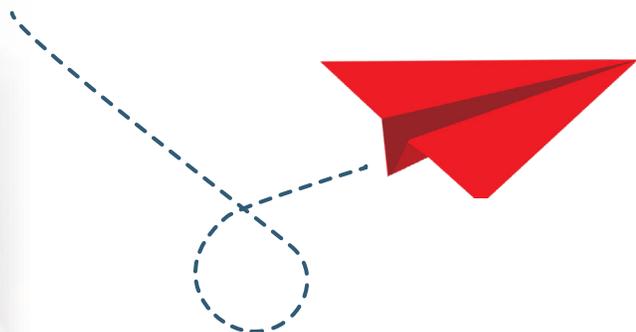

SEND OUT A PRESS RELEASE

If applicable, contact your school or district's communications office to see if creating a press release is an option to share your news. (They might have a process already in place!) A press release is a tool for you to share your school or district's whole story, including quotes from spokespeople, relevant research, and interesting anecdotes.

Once you have your press release, you can increase visibility by sharing it the following ways:

- Post the press release on your school website to reach a larger audience.
- Share the press release on social media (Twitter, Facebook, etc.).
- Share the press release at PTA meetings, board meetings, or any other appropriate opportunity.
- Send the press release to local media.

If your school or district doesn't have a communications office to reach out to local media, start by researching local news outlets. Think about what you read, watch, or listen to, as these are the members of the media you want covering your news. Examples include local newspapers and websites, TV, and radio stations.

Use Social Media to SHARE YOUR MESSAGE

Try tapping into the power of social media to get the word out about your summer reading news! Here are some ideas and examples to get you started:

1. Twitter, Facebook, and Instagram are great platforms to share summer reading photos from staff, students, and families while using the #SummerReading hashtag.

Sample post: We celebrated the joy of #SummerReading in our elementary schools today with every third-grader taking home book packs! [Don't forget to add a photo!]

2. Try offering families weekly summer reading tips on Twitter or other platforms.

Sample post: #SummerReading Tip of the Week: Summer reading should be fun reading! Read aloud and let your kids choose the books for themselves. [Include a photo or picture of a book cover!]

3. Encourage participation in the free, fun, and safe Scholastic Summer Reading program! From May 3 to September 3, kids can access ebooks, make new friends, create and keep Reading Streaks, earn virtual rewards, and help unlock a donation of 100,000 books for kids with limited or no access to books. Learn more at scholastic.com/summer.

Sample post: Join the free, fun, and safe Scholastic #SummerReading program. Kids can read ebooks, meet authors, help unlock a donation of 100,000 books to kids with limited or no access to books, and more! Learn more: scholastic.com/summer

4. Scholastic has two national research reports with relevant findings that you can share. Visit scholastic.com/readingreport and scholastic.com/teacherprincipalreport.

Sample post: Did you know that according to @scholastic, teachers report spending 50 hours making up for the effects of a typical "summer slide"? #SummerReading is critical for students' academic achievement!

Follow @Scholastic,
@ScholasticEd, and @ScholasticTeach on Twitter for more ideas
throughout the summer!

Join the FREE SCHOLASTIC SUMMER READING PROGRAM!

To continue to support literacy at home during this pressing time, the Scholastic Summer Reading program offers kids an exciting, free, and safe summer reading experience with Scholastic Home Base. While in the Scholastic Home Base summer zone, kids can:

- Make a difference by starting and keeping Reading Streaks to unlock a donation of 100,000 print books from Scholastic, distributed to kids across the country with limited or no access to books
- Read select ebooks and watch author read-alouds
- Meet their favorite Scholastic characters and engage with authors in special events
- Make friends with fellow readers and earn virtual rewards
- Print reading achievement reports to share with their caregivers or educators

To learn more and access free resources for educators and families, visit scholastic.com/summer.

WHY SUMMER READING?

Ninety-four percent of parents agree that reading over the summer can help their child during the school year. (Kids & Family Reading Report: 7th Edition)

Ninety-six percent of educators agree that providing year-round access to books at home is important to enhancing student achievement. (Teacher & Principal School Report: 2nd Edition)

How Your Peers Succeeded with Their SUMMER INITIATIVES

The State of Connecticut Distributes Take-Home Books

wshu.org/post/connecticut-receives-massive-donation-schoolbooks-use-distance-learning

In March 2020, Connecticut Governor Ned Lamont announced an initiative to distribute take-home book packs to more than 185,000 prekindergarten to eighth-graders across the state. Governor Lamont said, "Make sure that our kids have a new way of learning, our teachers have a new way of teaching. And make sure this is not four, or six lost months, but an opportunity to make the best of a bad situation."

How Cobb County School District Made Virtual Summer Learning a Success

edublog.scholastic.com/post/how-cobb-county-school-district-made-virtual-summer-learning-success

Diane Rice, Supervisor of the Personalized Learning Programs at Cobb County School District in Marietta, Georgia, shares some of her team's successes with remote summer learning using Scholastic LitCamp. "Social-emotional learning has become more and more important. We collaborated with our school psychologists and implemented a team teaching approach. Each LitCamp teacher partnered with a school psychologist who attended daily Zoom meetings," she explains Diane.

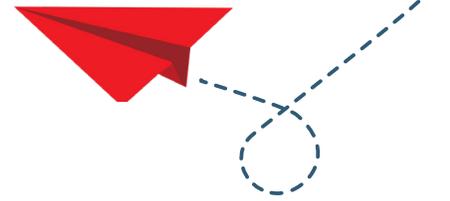

Governor's Early Literacy Foundation Delivers Free Summer Book Packs

jacksonsun.com/story/news/education/2020/07/04/some-decatur-co-students-get-free-summer-book-packets/3204337001/

To help prevent the "summer slide," the Governor's Early Literacy Foundation (GELF) mailed summer packets including 10 books, activity sheets, and family guides to students throughout Tennessee, including the Decatur County School District. "We really want to support families during this time; we know this is challenging. All of a sudden, every parent is a homeschool parent. As a foundation, we want to be there to support them as much as we can," said James Pond, president of GELF.

Tips for Families to Keep Kids

READING ALL SUMMER LONG

1.

CHECK OUT BOOKS OF EVERY GENRE FROM THE LIBRARY

Kids are more likely to read and finish the books they have picked out themselves, but they don't always know exactly what they want to read. Head to your local library, either in person or through the Libby app, to gather a variety of genres so your child can discover their interests.

2.

KEEP A BOOK IN THE CAR, IN YOUR BAG, OR ON YOUR PHONE

Waiting at a drive-thru or car wash? There is no bad place to encourage reading, so keep books on hand everywhere you go! If you forgot to pack a book, swipe through the pages of a book on a reading app to show that reading and technology go hand in hand.

3.

MAKE VIDEO GAMES EVEN MORE INTERACTIVE THROUGH READING

If your child is playing a game that takes place in a far-off land or features different cultures, use this as an opportunity to do research together, which will increase their reading time in the process. Looking to branch out from video games altogether? Your child might love graphic novels and comic books.

4.

WHEN KIDS ARE "TOO OLD" TO BE READ ALOUD TO, GET CREATIVE

As kids get older and gain more autonomy, read-aloud time decreases. If your kid thinks they're too old to read aloud, read them passages from your books, magazine articles, or interesting online posts. And while you're traveling to sports practice or cooking, ask them to do the same!

5.

KEEP MOTIVATION HIGH WITH A SUMMER READING PROGRAM

Check out the free, fun, and safe Scholastic Summer Reading program! From May 3 through September 3, kids can read ebooks, watch read-aloud videos, attend virtual author events, earn digital rewards, and create and keep Reading Streaks to help unlock a donation of 100,000 books for kids with limited or no access to reading materials. Learn more at scholastic.com/summer.

Happy summer reading!

Photos ©: cover: Jupiterimages/Getty Images; 2: AndreyPopov/Getty Images; 3: monkeybusinessimages/Getty Images; 4: Wavebreakmedia Ltd/Dreamstime.